Achtung, baby!

This is an important message on behalf of the Federal German Air Force.

There have recently been reports of a gang of desperate criminals in the area, masquerading as travelling rock musicians. Listed below are the predicted locations of the gang over the next few weeks. They are extremely dangerous, and citizens are advised not try to apprehend them. However, if you should encounter them, you are advised - for your own safety - to try and appease them by offering them any cash you may have on your person. The Federal German Air Force also suggests that offers of free drinks and/or casual sex may also be effective in this regard. (note that the latter approach may be counterproductive if you are particularly unappealing).

This has been a public safety announcement.
